

Scopus®

Your brilliance, connected

You have requested a correction to your Scopus profile and have contacted our support team. Here, we explain what you can expect in terms of timelines and next actions.

First of all, we're sorry you've had to take time out of your busy day to contact us about potential gaps in your profile. We understand how important a comprehensive, accurate record is and how much extra effort we have put you through, so we want to make the process as easy as we can.

Your Query

Some of my information is missing or incorrect in my document(s)

🕒 ~ 21 working days

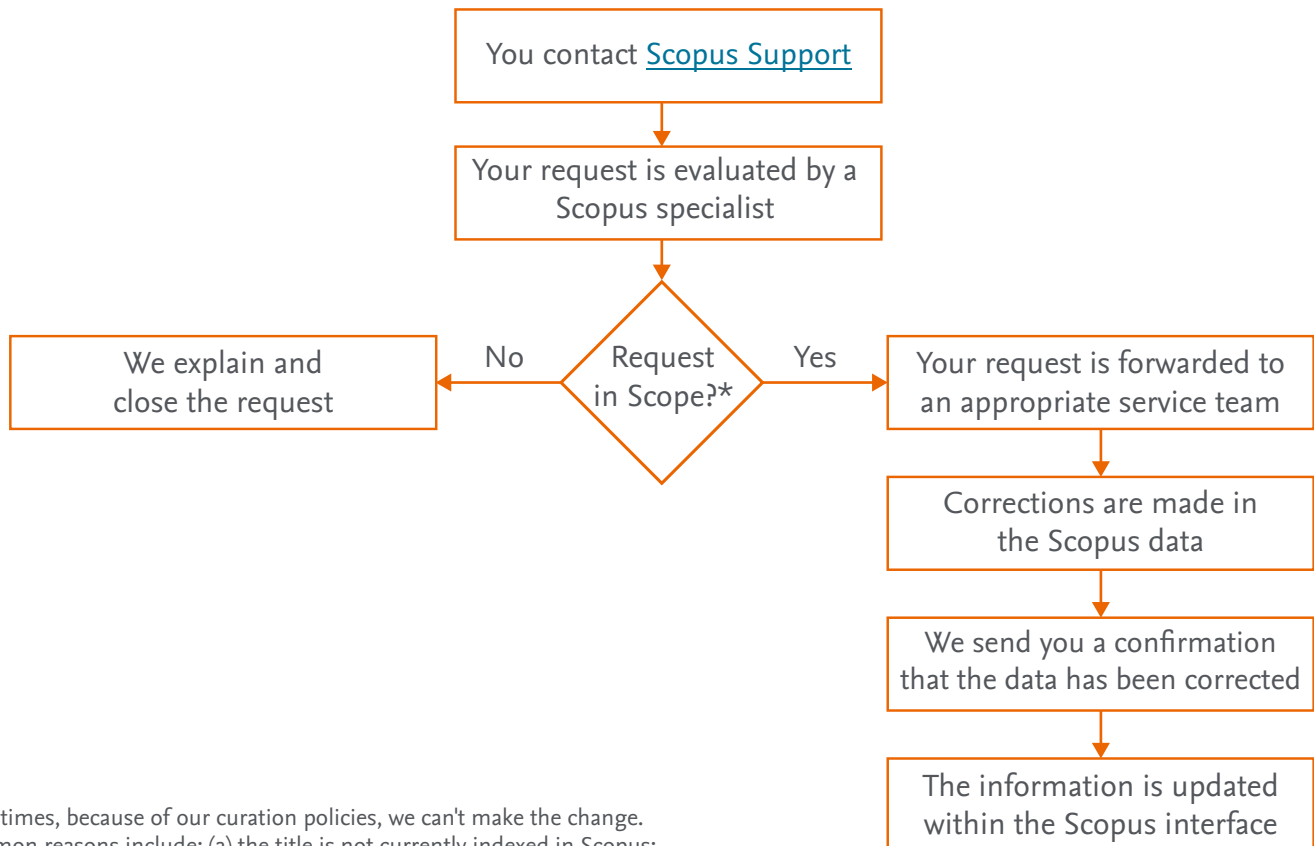

Some of my documents are missing

🕒 ~ 17 working days

My author profile is not accurate

🕒 ~ 7 working days

What Happens Next

* Sometimes, because of our curation policies, we can't make the change. Common reasons include: (a) the title is not currently indexed in Scopus; (b) the publication was too long ago for us to make a change.

NOTE: If the request is for a lot of information to be corrected or added, for example 10 or more articles or an entire book, a large number of book chapters, conference papers or complete conferences, then the request may take longer to complete, and we will keep you updated on progress.

For policy related information click here.

To view latest information about Scopus, please subscribe to our Scopus blog.

For concerns, reach out to Customer Complaint - Webform.